Syracuse

Syracuse was first known to the Indians as Webster's Camp and Webster's Landing in 1786. From 1796 to 1809 it was known as Bogardus Corners. In 1809 the name was changed to Milan; again in 1812 to Salina. In 1814 the town came to be known as Cossits' Corners, and three years later as Corinth. It was not until 1824 that the place received its present name of Syracuse. It was incorporated as a village, April 13, 1825, and as a city, Dec. 13, 1847
